

Parish of Killavullen and Annakisha

Second Week of Ordinary Time (January 16-23, 2022)

22.3

Second Sunday of Ordinary Time God's Kingdom is like a wedding feast

1st Reading: The prophet known as “Third Isaiah” wrote in the 6th Century BC. He joyfully announced the end of Israel’s slavery in Babylon, the return to Jerusalem and the beginning of a new covenant. The new relationship with God would be marked by a wedding feast.

2nd Reading: St Paul observes that the new Body of Christ, which is the Church, is blessed in many different ways. Each of us has some unique gifts to offer and we can all contribute to building God’s kingdom.

Gospel: The first of the miracles of Jesus sets the pattern for them all: there is some need (in this case, the embarrassment of running out of wine at a wedding feast) that Jesus is able to remedy. Mary, who is always known as the “mother of Jesus” in the Gospel of John, makes our needs known to God. Children’s worksheets on today’s Gospel are available at church doorways

Resilience doesn’t look the same for everyone. It can depend on what is happening in a person’s life. Some define resilience as the ability to ‘spring back into shape’ when something difficult happens, to bounce back like a tennis ball. How many of us can do that when something difficult is going on? I am not sure that it is always healthy to spring back immediately. ...

For me it helps knowing that God is good. My faith helps me to look at the future with hope and not fear. Practising gratitude helps me notice the goodness that is in my life, as well as how God is active, even when things are difficult. Last month I noticed a white feather stuck in a bush in front of my window. Winds blew and it rained heavily, and yet the feather was still there. Eventually I took it inside as a reminder of how I view resilience. We may be vulnerable, we may feel weak, but something bigger than us, the hands of a loving God, are holding us as we struggle through life. (Iva Beranek)
